OUR GOALS

Enhance usability & navigation

Streamlining navigation and improve user experience, also on mobile

Modernise the website's layout

Simple and modern layout, updated visual identity and intuitive workflows

Ensure safety and accessibility

Implement robust security measures and comply with accessibility requirements

Develop a reliable admin system

Enable the Secretariat to manage the website independently in an effective manner

OUR CONSTRAINTS

Ensure continuity with existing content

30 years of documentation

Ensure continuity with existing principles and tools

Usefulness and relevance of many tools developed for our legacy website

Facilitate the prompt deployment of the new interface

Avoid creating a brand-new website from scratch

Budget

Has to be moderate, fully covered by reserve funds

OUR APPROACH

Modernisation rather than full relaunch

Modernised technical infrastructure and implementation of new design

Small and agile team

One graphic designer and one developer

Jacob Nordström – Nordström Design Stockholm

Yann Klis – Novelys Strasbourg

GENERAL SEARCH: Filter by category “MIL Taskforce”

The screenshot shows the EPRA website's search interface. The header is dark blue with the EPRA logo on the left and navigation links (News, Plenary Meetings, Events, Documents, Regulation, EPRA) on the right. A search icon is also present in the header. Below the header, the main heading reads "Search everything on EPRA". A sub-heading explains that users can perform a full-text search, use filters, or combine both. A large search input field contains the placeholder text "Search for articles, news, documents...". To the left of the search results are several filter options: "All Sections", "Category", "MIL TASKFORCE (EMIL) (100)" (highlighted in red), "Keyword", and "Country". Below these filters are "Search" and "Reset" buttons. The search results are displayed in a list format, with each result showing a title, a "Read more" button, and a brief description. The first result is "22nd EMIL Taskforce meeting", posted on 19 June, 2026 (private). The second result is "EMIL - 21st Meeting - Summary", posted on 31 March, 2026 (public). The third result is "EMIL - Terms of Reference (ToR) 2026".

SURVEYS: How does it work?

The screenshot shows the EPRA website's survey page. The header is purple with the EPRA logo and navigation links: News, Plenary Meetings, Events, Surveys, Documents, Regulation, EPRA, Admin, and a search icon. The breadcrumb trail is: Home > Surveys > Survey on Impartiality and Pluralism among Public and Private Broadcasters. A large image shows a hand with a pen pointing to a checklist on a tablet, with a white icon of a clipboard and checkmark overlaid. Below the image, the category 'PLURALISM' is shown in pink. The main title is 'Survey on Impartiality and Pluralism among Public and Private Broadcasters'. The post date is '05 February, 2026 16:38' by 'Fatine Maussang (private)'. The survey dates are 'Start 05 Feb → Finish 03 Mar 2026'. The response count is '21 responses, including 21 completed, 0 draft'. A short description follows: 'As part of its studies on the principle of impartiality among public broadcasters, Arcom wishes to establish an overview of the approaches used by EPRA members in terms of impartiality and pluralism.' At the bottom, there are two buttons: a red 'Survey closed' button and a purple 'Export survey' button.
